ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

Swiss, EFTA and European Community citizens need a valid national identity card or passport to enter Spain. Citizens from the rest of the world require a valid passport and a temporary entrance or residence visa issued by the appropriate Spanish Embassy or Consulate from their country of residence, unless they come from countries with which a visa exemption agreement has been signed. Where such an agreement has been reached, these persons are exempt from an entrance visa for visits not exceeding 90 days and they must not intend to undertake any work in Spain.

Swiss citizens have the right to reside in Spanish territory for a superior period than three months. However this requires them to solicit personally their registration to the Central Register for foreigners within the first three months of the entrance in Spain.

Moreover, Spanish firms will be able to hire Swiss citizens without any need for an administrative authorisation process. They will thus have the right to access any professional activity in identical conditions to those applicable to Spanish nationals.

Transfer from the airport to the city center:

- The price for a taxi ride from the Madrid-Barajas airport to the center of Madrid is a flat rate €33 one way and takes approximately 20-30 minutes depending on the traffic conditions.
- There is a metro line from Madrid city to the airport terminal 4: Metro Line 8 Nuevos Ministerios - Aeropuerto T4. The line has two metro stations in the airport. The price of a single ticket to/from the airport is €5 and the service operates from 6.05 a.m. to 1.30 a.m.

HEALTH REQUIREMENTS

Mandatory and recommended vaccinations: No particular vaccinations are required in Spain. For updated information about the current COVID situation in Spain, please, visit the following link of the Embassy of Switzerland to Spain. As of July 2022, no COVID vaccination is required for Swiss citizens.

The healthcare system in Spain is generally of a high standard and combines both private and public healthcare, with residents in possession of a Spanish social security number and the necessary documentation being entitled to receive free or low-cost healthcare.

The state system is funded by social security contributions, with each region of Spain taking individual responsibility for a health budget allocated by the central government.

As the healthcare system is decentralized, you will need to check the conditions in your own area for using healthcare services. There is a directory of the regional health authorities within the different regions of Spain on the Spanish Health Ministry's website (mainly in Spanish). Click on your region on the map for contact details of your local health authority and links to specific information about the health services it provides.

Medical insurance: Some residents choose to use private healthcare services in Spain in order to have access to more options for treatment and physicians, and to avoid the queues of the public health system, especially in the case of non-emergency procedures. There are hundreds of private clinics and hospitals across the country, giving the private healthcare system a great degree of accessibility. Single consultations within the private healthcare system may be affordable, but the care required in the case of a medical complication or in an emergency can quickly become expensive. If planning to regularly use private healthcare services, it is recommended to take out health insurance.

PUBLIC SECURITY / RECOMMENDED PRECAUTIONS

Public security in Spain follows the high average of the western EU countries. The main recommended precautions are in the area of pickpocketing in major cities, mostly in public transportation and in crowded spaces. In the following link you will find the FDFA Travel Advice page of Spain (in German).

DOMESTIC TRAVEL, LOCAL TRANSPORT

The most commonly used kind of public transport are bus and metro. The quality of the services is excellent. We usually recommend either using public transport in big cities or hiring a local taxi.

Taxi fare by Km is € 1.10 (CHF 1.30):

Main ride hailing apps: Free Now, Uber, Cabify, Bolt

Main method of payment for taxi and subways: Credit card / cash

Car rental with/without a driver can be arranged at numerous companies:

- Hertz: <https://www.hertz.es/p/alquiler-de-coches/espana> w/o driver
- Europcar: <https://www.europcar.es/es-es> arranged driver option
- Sixt: <https://www.sixt.es/> w/o driver

Regarding air, sea and rail transportation in Spain:

AIR:

The 46 airports (+2 heliports) in Spain reached historic levels with 283 million passengers in 2023. The main airports in terms of passengers' traffic are Madrid, Barcelona, Palma de Mallorca, Malaga, Gran Canaria, Alicante, Ibiza and Tenerife.

The following airports have direct connections to Switzerland: Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia, Alicante, Málaga, Sevilla, Bilbao, Santiago de Compostela, Mallorca, Menorca, Ibiza, Las Palmas de Gran Canaria, Tenerife, Lanzarote and Fuerteventura.

SEA:

Spain's geographical position and the peninsular nature of its mainland with 8,000 km of coastline have led to the development of 46 ports providing maritime links to all destinations. According to the Spanish Ports Authority (www.puertos.es), The main ports in terms of cargo traffic during 2022 were Valencia (78.8 million tonnes), Algeciras (70.5 million tonnes), Barcelona (48.1 million tonnes), Las Palmas (17.2 million tonnes) and Baleares (12.2 million tonnes). In total, the State-owned Port System handled 563.4 million tonnes of goods in-2022.

RAIL:

The Spanish rail network is predominantly operated by the state-owned company "Red Nacional de los Ferrocarriles Españoles" (RENFE), However, in December 2020, the Spanish railway market opened to new competitors. SNCF (French state railway company) entered the market with its brand Ouigo, and so did the Italian brand Iryo. The country benefits from a wide railway network, used by millions of travelers each year, especially in terms of high-speed train lines. The high-speed rail network connects all major cities to Madrid as well as the main tourist destinations in Spain. Since 2013, the Spanish high-speed network is connected to France via the Barcelona-Figueres line.

ACCOMMODATION, TEMPORARY OFFICE SPACE

LANGUAGES USED FOR BUSINESS

Spanish is the official national language for the entire country.

The six autonomous communities of Catalonia, the Basque Country, Galicia, Valencia, Navarre and the Balearic Islands have also declared regional languages as official languages along with Spanish. These languages are Catalan (in Catalonia and the Balearic Islands), Basque (in the Basque Country and areas of Navarre), Galician and Valencian.

Although many large companies do conduct business in English and Spanish, you cannot expect English (neither French, nor German) to be widely spoken. Check in advance to determine if an interpreter is needed.

BUSINESS PRACTICES

Scheduling Meetings:

You should always make appointments in advance and confirm them by phone or email just before your arrival. When you arrive at an appointment, the most appropriate way to announce yourself is to present your business card to the receptionist, who in turn will let your Spanish contact know that you have arrived.

There is no substitute for face-to-face meetings with Spanish business representatives to break into this market. Spaniards expect a personal relationship with suppliers. Initial communication by phone or email is far less effective than a personal meeting.

Decision-making can be slow and tedious: various levels of hierarchy will be consulted and all aspects of your proposal will be analysed in painstaking detail; only the highest individual in authority makes the final decision. Spaniards generally expect the people with whom they negotiate to have the authority to make the final decision.

Although you should always be punctual yourself, you should not be surprised or alarmed if a visitor arrives 15-20 minutes late.

Business attire:

Spaniards are extremely dress-conscious and will perceive your appearance as an indication of your professional achievement and relative social standing. It is therefore important to dress con elegancia, which means top-quality, conservative clothing. Men should wear dark woollen or linen suits and silk ties with shirts and women should wear well-cut suits (including trouser suits) or business dresses made of high-quality fabrics. Shoes are also an important element of dress. Shabby looking shoes and colourful socks can ruin any nice outfit.

Obviously the weather can be an important factor in determining what to wear. As the temperature approaches 40°C in the shade at the height of summer, it becomes increasingly acceptable to wear lightweight suits and, outside an air-conditioned office, to loosen one's tie and throw one's jacket over one's shoulder. Of course, it makes a difference for the dress code if you are working for a law firm or if you are a representative of an IT start-up.

As always, it is best to follow the example of your Spanish counterpart and to remember that it is 'cool' to look smart, but also that it is smart to look literally cool.

Introducing yourself:

Shake hands with everyone present -men, women- at a business or social meeting. Shake hands again when leaving.

Men may embrace each other when meeting (friends and family only). Women may kiss each other on the cheek and embrace.

You should be aware of the importance hierarchy and position play in Spanish business culture. For example, it would be frowned upon if you spent a great deal of time and attention on someone who is of lesser rank than you. It will be in your best interest to focus chiefly on those who would be considered your "equals".

Building trust and personal relationships:

It is important that you stay involved with your Spanish counterparts, helping to implement what has been agreed to. This must be done with sensitivity toward the pride that Spaniards feel in being able to handle things independently. So, never be intrusive, but always be available; express an interest in learning about their ways, while providing them with the resources and information they need to reach their objectives.

Sensitive topics:

It is difficult to cause real offence without being directly insulting - and you should not confuse a Spaniard's innate animation with anger or any other deep-seated emotion - but you must avoid making disrespectful remarks about Spanish traditions or practices (i.e. bullfighting) that you may find alien. You must certainly not allude to national or regional stereotypes.

BUSINESS RISKS

Spain's position in the Global Corruption Index 2023 powered by risk-indexes.com is 26. Currency volatility risk is very low, due to the consolidated international position of the euro.

Spain's Country Risk Classification is not assessed by the OECD as a result of being part of the OECD itself and Eurozone.

Swiss Export Risk Insurance SERV insures political and del credere risks involved in exporting goods and services.
